Murderer Barricaded In Home Near New Paltz Following Fatal Shooting

John Wager Defies Officers and Troopers After Killing Charles Ronk—Send For Tear Gas Bombs—Attentions To Wager's Daughter Probable Motive.

Charles Ronk, 30, of Forest Glen, near New Paltz, lies dead on the ground floor of the John Wager home there, while Wager, a man of 60 years, who killed him this morning with a shot gun, is barricaded in the second story of the house, shielding himself from a sheriff's posse and State Troopers.

Tear gas bombs will be used to rout Wager, who has been sealed up in his place of hiding since 7:30 this morning. The tear gas bombs are being brought to the scene of the murder by Captain Fox and his flying squadron detail of State Troopers from Troop C at Sidney, N. Y.

No motive for the shooting of Ronk has been given, but the assumption has been advanced that Wager labored under the delusion that Ronk had been paying too much attention to his daughter, Helen Wager, aged 15.

Ronk and Helen were together this morning in the living room, which adjoins the kitchen, in the Wager home. Ronk was putting on his shoes. Wager walked from the kitchen with his shot gun, which he kept behind the door, and shot Ronk in the side of the head, the charge tearing one side of his face to shreds. Helen, who was standing near Ronk, was not injured.

Several neighbors, awaiting the Troopers, entered the Wager home and heard footsteps upstairs. They immediately left anticipating that the man might start shooting if he thought someone had come to arrest him.

After an hour had elapsed Sergeant Lockhart and State Trooper Baker of Highland arrived. They questioned the girl and her mother, learning that Wager had gone upstairs with the gun in his possession.

Sergeant Cunningham, State Trooper Weeks and Undersheriff Foster arrived, but were handicapped in their efforts to extricate Wager owing to his situation in the upper floor of the house. There is but one entrance to the home, giving the man a chance to cover intruders with his gun.

Ronk had been a boarder at the Wager home.

Lindbergh Makes Light Of Accident

Lebec, Cal., Feb. 4 (AP).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh observed his 28th birth anniversary today by planning another flight in the glider which he piloted yesterday to a safe landing near here after it had lost an aileron in midair. Whether he would make the next flight today depended upon weather conditions.

Laughing like a school boy at the conclusion of a particularly successful prank, the flying colonel, having safely landed the frail, crippled craft in a mountain valley, was highly pleased rather than dismayed at the incident which had brought the hearts of his watchers into their throats.

Lindbergh was launched into the air in a test flight preparatory to an attempt planned by Hawley Bowlus, the sailplane's builder, to establish a new world gliding record, and had reached an altitude of 300 feet when the aileron on the left wing broke loose and fluttered to the ground.

The colonel's head jerked sharply to the side as the aileron, an essential part of the control apparatus, broke free, and hoarse shouts from the little throng of mechanics, newspapermen and photographers were not necessary to warn him of his danger.

He attempted no immediate landing, however, but sailed serenely on, dipping gracefully over the hilltops, finally to disappear into a valley. Whether he had fallen, or landed safely, the anxious group of watchers could not tell.

When observers reached him after running frantically to the spot of his landing, the colonel was standing beside the undamaged craft on a little knoll, laughing heartily.

The Colonel said he had "a little difficulty in landing" and that "it was an uncomfortable feeling when I saw it fall." He added that he was not alarmed because he had confidence in the construction of the craft.

ATTORNEY BROOKS ILL, SHORT CASE IS ADJOURNED

Matthew Short of Pine Hill, charged with assault against a young girl on March 17, 1929, who was brought to trial in County Court before Judge Joseph M. Fowler, Monday afternoon, will not be tried before Monday afternoon next week, because his attorney, Frank W. Brooks, sent word this morning that he would be unable to continue the case because of illness. The case was opened Monday afternoon and eight jurors accepted by Mr. Brooks and District Attorney Frederick G. Traver. The jurors will be retained when the case is brought to trial next week, when the defense attorney recovers from his illness.

County Court will convene again this afternoon, and the district attorney is expected to have several cases ready for trial.

High School Team on Strike.

Elmira, N. Y., Feb. 4 (AP).—The Elmira Heights High School basketball team, a member of the Southern Tier Conference, announced today that it would not play any more games and would remain on strike until the return of Winton Lutes, its star forward. Lutes was dismissed from the team last Friday by Coach Roland R. Worster for indifference during practice. Despite Worster's decision to reinstate Lutes, the player refused to return to play and his teammates say they will not play without him.

Edward J. Cullen Dies of Pneumonia

Was Taken With Severe Cold on Wednesday of Last Week—Employed for 20 Years as Clerk in New York City Law Department.

Edward J. Cullen, one of the best known young men of Kingston, died at the Benedictine Hospital at 5 o'clock this morning of pleuro pneumonia, after an illness lasting only since last Wednesday.

He was for 20 years employed as clerk in the New York city law department to the commissioners of appraisal in condemnation proceedings in the Esopus and Schoharie water sheds. As such he served as assistant to the late William McMurtree Speer and his successor, Judge William H. Grogan, special attorney to the New York law department.

Born in Kingston 43 years ago, the son of the late Thomas and Mrs. Cullen, he had lived his entire life in this city. He was graduated from Ulster Academy and later took business courses. He was an expert stenographer.

He was married to Miss Helen Parsell of this city, who survives him, together with a daughter, Kathleen, his mother, two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Deegan, of Kingston, and Mrs Arthur Mesereau of Bergenfield, N. J., an uncle, Prof. P. H. Cullen, school principal of Kingston, and several cousins.

He was a member of Kingston Council, K. of C., and served this council as grand knight. He was also a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Church. For years he was interested in civic affairs and was always found a valuable worker in drives and campaigns, during the war period, and later. He was one of the ardent workers in the very successful campaign for the raising of funds with which to pay off the heavy debt on the Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. Cullen, apparently in robust health, was taken with a severe cold on Wednesday of last week. He left the law offices where he was employed at 10 o'clock in the morning, going immediately to his home. His family physician was summoned, and a diagnosis revealed that he was suffering with pneumonia. His removal to the hospital followed on Thursday morning. Everything possible was done for him at the hospital, but the progress of the disease was not to be retarded.

The funeral will be held from his late home, 129 Green street, on Friday morning. A Mass of requiem will follow at St. Joseph's Church. The hour for the holding of the funeral has not been determined.

600 Deaths From Smallpox.

Mexico City, Feb. 4 (AP).—A dispatch to El Universal today from Jonacatepec, Morelos, reported 600 deaths from smallpox there and nearby during the last fortnight. The dispatch said the epidemic had killed 200 persons, most of them children, in that region in the last ten days, while approximately 400 persons had died within two weeks in the neighborhood district of Axochiapan.

Recover Body of Miner.

Jenny Lind, Ark., Feb. 4 (AP).—The body of M. D. Redfern, 40, a "shot firer" reported missing last night, was taken from a coal mine here today by a rescue party which traveled almost 3,500 feet down the mine slope. The searchers said he had succumbed to afterdamp which followed an explosion late yesterday. He leaves a widow and eight children.

Consider French And British Plans Carefully

Delegations of Naval Conference Meet as Committee of the Whole and Take Up Proposals Paragraph by Paragraph.

London, Feb. 4 (AP).—French and British plans for limiting naval tonnage were put under a microscope at a two hour session today of the national delegations of the five power naval conference as a committee of the whole at St. James's Palace. The general session took up the proposals of the two nations paragraph by paragraph, a spokesman for each nation contributing to the discussions. Examination of the proposals will be continued at a later date.

With First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander in the chair, the conference took the French proposal as a basis for discussion. Alexander then submitted the British counter proposal. It was understood the discussion which followed was only on the broadest terms and largely of an explanatory nature.

Rene Massigli, speaking for the French, laid emphasis on the publicity feature of the French scheme, that is, the obligation to give notice of transfer from one category of warship to another one year before construction.

Ambassador Hugh L. Gibson, voicing the American viewpoint, suggested that light cruisers and destroyers should not be lumped together as they would be under the French plan. The Italian delegate, Sarjani, stated his country's position, favoring the general global system of limiting tonnage as contrasted with limitation by categories, which is favored by America, Great Britain and Japan.

Admiral Takarabe, Japanese admiralty head, was an attentive listener as the experts dealt with the various points but he had no suggestions of his own to offer.

The following official statement was issued after the meeting: "The first committee (the conference as a committee of the whole) visited St. James's Palace at 10 o'clock this morning.

"In addition to statements made at the previous meeting the committee had under consideration the French transactional proposal and the series of draft resolutions outlined under five heads and the compromise proposed by the United Kingdom's delegation.

"As arranged at the previous meeting the discussion opened on the basis of the French transactional proposal. After discussion in which Admiral Siriana, for Italy, Admiral Takarabe for Japan, Mr. Nagai, also of Japan, Mr. Gibson of the United States, and Mr. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, set forth the views of their respective delegations on the principles of the proposals. The committee decided to discuss it in detail."

A British spokesman described the morning's discussions as frank and hopeful, eludications of various points being of a helpful nature. He declared difficulties which were encountered were not so great as might have appeared on the surface.

Difficulties, he said, undoubtedly would exist but the more they were discussed the more amenable they tended to become rather than unyielding. The reservations which had been made—and the spokesman called attention that all countries had made certain reservations—were normal reservations such as would be expected in such situations.

After the meeting of the heads of the delegations in another section of the palace a statement was issued which said good results in preparing the way for agreement were being obtained from private conversations among the delegations. It was said these private conversations will continue.

CHRISTOPHER MORLEY'S OLD THEATRE FACES INSOLVENCY.

Hoboken, N. J., Feb. 4 (AP).—The spectre of insolvency today stalked upon the stage of the old Rialto Theatre where Christopher Morley conjured up ghosts of the gay nineties with revivals of "The Black Crook" and "After Dark; or Neither Maid, Wife nor Widow."

As in the old melodramas which New Yorkers voyaged over the Hudson to "The Last Seacoast of Bohemia" to view, the financial problem play of the Hoboken Theatrical Company, Inc., has the fond parent appealing for help to save his child and the hero rushing to the rescue.

Morley, cast in the role of the parent, made his appeal yesterday in Chancery Court in Trenton, N. J., in the form of a petition for an equity receivership. He hopes Rufus Besson, in the person of the receiver appointed by the court, will save the old home of gas-lit drama.

In his affidavit Morley said there are about 35 creditors with claims totaling $15,000.

In his petition Morley blames the condition of the company upon a former treasurer" but does not name him.

Ambulance Calls Here.

On Monday the city ambulance removed Epenetus Newkirk from 83 Prospect street to the Kingston Hospital; Frank Smith from 77 Downs street to the Kingston Hospital; James Butler from the Kingston Hospital to 35 Gill street, and Mrs. Freer from Esopus avenue to the Benedictine Hospital.

Hughes Named Chief Justice of United States

Succeeds Chief Justice Taft, Who Resigned Because of Ill Health—All Washington Surprised To Learn of His Appointment—Greatest Opportunity For Service, Says Hughes.

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP).—Charles Evans Hughes, one of the foremost of the nation's jurists and statesmen, is to be the next chief justice of the United States.

He will succeed William Howard Taft, who, broken in health by arduous years in the public service, has been forced to resign and devote his entire attention to the betterment of his physical condition.

In spite of Mr. Hughes's acknowledged talents, all Washington was surprised last night to learn of his appointment. His nomination was sent to the Senate by President Hoover just as dusk was falling. A few hours previously Mr. Taft's resignation had been announced and the interim had been filled with speculation as to his successor in the course of which Mr. Hughes's name went unmentioned.

But in the meanwhile, the President had been busy with the long distance telephone. He reached Mr. Hughes in New York, offered him the appointment and obtained immediate acceptance. With a radiant smile, the appointee later told newspapermen that he would accept the post as the greatest opportunity for service that ever had come his way.

Thus has a mighty turn of events caught up these two distinguished Americans, whose names are written large in the history of their nation. For one it brought the end of a career that led him through the two loftiest offices of the American government. To the other it bore the beginning of a new and greater chapter in a career already brilliant.

While Mr. Taft is the only man in history to serve as President and chief justice, Hughes missed the former by an extremely narrow margin. Opposing Woodrow Wilson in the campaign of 1916, he failed of election by 23 electoral votes. So close was the balloting that the outcome was in doubt for days.

In their personal characteristics there is a wide divergence between Mr. Taft and Mr. Hughes.

Taft brought to the supreme bench his cheerful philosophies and his famous chuckle. His studious nature and industrious habits were hidden behind his jovial manner. Frequently he relieved the tedium of protracted legal disputes with one of his characteristic witticisms.

With Hughes, the student of affairs and the austerity of intellect are predominant. The public knows him as a stern, industrious, gifted statesman and jurist, always impeccably groomed, the "perfect picture of a statesman". His close associates know this side of the man, too; but they know him, as well, as genial and affable in his daily contacts.

Career Began in New York.

Hughes's career began in New York, where his legal abilities brought early prominence and an opportunity for the Republican mayoralty nomination in 1905. This he declined. Two years later he became governor of the state and in 1909 he began a second term, but resigned in 1910 to accept appointment as an associate justice of the supreme court. This came from Taft, then president.

The Republican national convention at Chicago nominated him for the presidency on June 10, 1916, and he resigned from the Supreme bench on the same day. After his defeat at the polls he returned to private practice, but again entered the public service in 1921 to become secretary of state in the Harding cabinet.

In this capacity he was the principal American delegate to the naval arms conference of 1921 and astounded the world with his demands for extensive reduction of sea forces. He continued in the cabinet after Harding's death and withdrew at the beginning of President Coolidge's second term in 1925.

His international prominence brought him appointment to the arbitration court of the Hague, by Coolidge in 1926, and two years later election by the council and assembly of the League of Nations to an associate justiceship on the permanent court of international justice. In addition, he served as chairman of the American delegation to the sixth Pan-American conference in Havana in 1928.

Otherwise, the last few years have been spent in private legal practice, which has brought him many times before the bar of the Supreme Court, where he several times found his legal talents pitted against those of another defeated candidate for the presidency, John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee in 1924.

The Hughes nomination was referred by the Senate to its committee on the judiciary, which is expected to take it up at its first meeting, probably early next week. Chairman Norris says no opposition to confirmation is in prospect.

Taft Returns To Washington A Sick Man

Dr. Hagner Says Former Chief Justice Is Not Believed to Be In Immediate Danger—Is Carried Into House—Pleased at Appointment of Hughes.

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP).—William Howard Taft, whose failing health forced him to retire from the chief justiceship of the United States, returned to the capital at 7:05 a. m. today from Asheville, N. C., where he spent the last three weeks in an effort to regain his strength.

Dr. Francis Hagner, personal physician to Mr. Taft, said the former president was a sick man "but as far as we can tell he is in no immediate danger."

Taft's car was sidetracked in the Union station so that he could remain in his berth as long as he desired. It was planned then to take him to his home.

The former chief justice was accompanied by Mrs. Taft, Dr. Hagner and a nurse. He spent a fairly restful night.

Before the train reached Washington, Dr. Hagner went into the drawing room occupied by Mr. Taft and was greeted by a cheerful smile from his patient. There was no conversation.

Dr. Hagner said the eminent jurist was eager to return home. When the former chief justice first reached Asheville, his physician said, he seemed to improve but lately his condition had become worse. It was felt, he added, that he would have a better chance for improvement at his home than elsewhere.

Whether he will be removed later to a hospital will be determined by his condition.

Dr. Hagner said Mr. Taft had expressed great pleasure on hearing of the appointment yesterday of Charles Evans Hughes to succeed him as chief justice.

"That's fine," his physician quoted his as saying on being informed that Mr. Hughes had been named.

About half hour after his car had reached the station it was moved from the subway tracks used by southern roads to the tracks of northern and western roads which are on the ground level. The weakened man then was carried off.

Seated in a chair, Mr. Taft was picked up by three porters and taken to the platform where he sat for a minute before the three men lowered him down the steps. The former chief justice reached out as he was being carried down and seized the hand rails on the car and clung to them until Dr. Hagner reached up and took his hands and held them in his own.

When the porters had reached the concrete of the station platform with Mr. Taft, he was raised out of his chair and placed in a rolling chair.

"That's rather a tight fit," Dr. Hagner said to Mr. Taft, "but it won't be for long."

The chair then was rolled through the foyer. A battery of flashlight guns greeted him as he came into the open.

When they reached the automobile of Associate Justice Sutherland, two men entered the car and two stayed outside and the quartet lifted Mr. Taft into the automobile.

Mrs. Taft got into the machine with him while Dr. Hagner, the nurse and Mr. Taft's secretary entered another car for the drive to the Taft home on Wyoming avenue.

The former chief justice looked pale and worn.

When the distinguished patient reached his residence he was taken to the side entrance, where he had installed an electric elevator several years ago, when he was first seriously afflicted with heart trouble.

Dr. Hagner again experienced difficulty in moving the feet of his patient so that he could leave the automobile, and he literally was carried into the house at 7:50 a. m.

Three Principal Issues Before New York State

Governor Roosevelt Says They Are Telephone Rates, Waterpower Development and the Prison Situation.

Albany, Feb. 4 (AP).—Governor Roosevelt believes that three of the principal issues before the people of New York state today are the state's fight against a telephone rate increase, the agreement of the Republican and Democratic leaders to work together to develop the St. Lawrence waterpower project and the prison situation in general.

The governor outlined these issues in a "radio report to the people" made last night over WGY, Schenectady, and other stations throughout the state.

Also of importance, according to the executive, are a statewide system of bi-partisan election boards, the use of voting machines in all districts, simplification of local government, action by county officials to pass along to the taxpayers the benefits of state tax reduction measures—a thing the governor implied was not being done—and legislation to aid agriculture.

Remarking that 94 of every 100 men who go to prison are returned to society, the governor said a prison was intended to reform as well as to punish and therefore the state needed especially to give care to its prisons, to make them sanitary and livable and to eliminate overcrowding. He said "nobody wants to mollycoddle."

On the subject of waterpower he said he believed "the offer on the part of the Republican legislative leaders to pass a measure which I hope will prove the first step in the development of the state-owned potential electric power on the St. Lawrence river" was the first step in obtaining a definite reduction of electric light and power rates for the householders. He said: "It is incumbent upon all of us to see that the rates are kept down to the lowest possible level."

The governor again stressed the necessity for finding a way through legislation to keep the first steps in utilities' efforts to increase rates in state bodies. He repeated his recent statement, "The time has come for a complete restudy of the relationship between the public utility companies and the state itself."

Referring to a $46,000,000 increase in the $311,000,000 executive budget, he said the normal growth of the state brought a higher cost in government.

Here Is An Easy Way to Make $1000.00

If you were putting a new soap on the market what would you call it? You would give it some name—either simple or fancy—what would that name be? I know you have a name in mind now, or you can suggest one after a few moments' thought. The very name you select may win the $1000.00 I am offering. It makes no difference whether you live in the country or city, if you are educated or not, if you are rich or poor, I want you to help me by suggesting a name for my new soap. We have paid thousands of dollars to prize winners and in almost every instance the person who least expected to win received a prize. You, too, may win by sending a suggestion. It costs you nothing to try. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, for any name may win. This soap is fragrant, lathers freely, promotes a smooth soft skin, is excellent for the bath, washing the hair, etc. A coined word such as Clean-Easy, Clean-All, or the name of flowers, trees, etc., or any other name you think of may be submitted.

YOU CAN'T LOSE

because other contestants submit the winning name first, as we will give duplicate prizes to all who send the winning name. If the name you send wins, you will receive $1000.00 regardless of how many other people have submitted the same name. This means you can't lose by others submitting the winning name first.

$100 Extra For Promptness

To get quick action we are going to pay the winner an extra $100.00 for promptness, or $1100.00 in all—so send your suggestion AT ONCE.

CONTEST RULES

This contest is open to everyone except members of this firm, its employees and relatives.
Each contestant may send only one name. Sending two or more names will cause all names submitted by that person to be thrown out.
Contest closes April 30, 1930. Duplicate prizes will be given in case of ties.
To win the promptness prize of $100.00 extra, the winning name suggested must be mailed within three days after our announcement is read.

Absolutely Nothing Else To Do

Remember there is no obligation. The person sending the name we choose will win this handsome prize. Nothing to buy or sell—nothing else to do to win. Think of the pleasure this prize can bring you, the places you could go, the things you could buy, with $1000.00, or $1100.00 cash, if you are prompt. Wouldn't it be delightful to win? Wouldn't it be a pleasant surprise to your friends? Don't think you can't win for your opportunity is just as good as anyone's, if you will send in a name. Do it right now! for the very name you send may win.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper figure, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Runaway Boy Found Here

John Swarthouse, 14, of Coxsackie, ran away from his home in Coxsackie on Monday, and word was telephoned to the Kingston police department asking that the boy, if found here, be picked up and held. It was said that the boy was on his way to Florida.

This afternoon Officer Entrott picked up the boy at the West Shore railroad station and took him to police headquarters while word was telephoned to Coxsackie.

The boy had hitch-hiked his way from Coxsackie to Kingston.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S LIFE THREATENED.

Auburn, N. Y., Feb. 4 (AP).—Threat against the life of District Attorney James J. Hosmer for his prosecution of six Auburn convicts standing trial here on murder charges today resulted in precautions for his safety.

Late yesterday an unidentified man telephoned the Hosmer home and asked Mrs. Hosmer for the prosecutor. Told that he was not there, the man is reported to have said: "Hosmer's been pretty tough with those boys up there in the court house. He'd better lay off or he'll be knocked off."

Police Chief Chester J. Bills, notified immediately, established a police guard about the residence. Possibility that a body guard would follow the prosecutor wherever he goes, also was seen.

Fear that the mystery call might indicate a plot of deeper danger led Sheriff Earl J. Morgan to cancel all tickets of admission to the court room where the trial is under way, even those issued to the press. Other tickets were issued, to be given only to those who could identify themselves as having business in the court room.

Too many of the old tickets were issued, said the sheriff. Many of them had got into the hands of persons undesired in the court room, he said.

County officials later revealed they were motivated in withdrawing the old tickets by information that several former convicts had been among the spectators in the court. Additional State Troopers were stationed in and about the building, bringing the total of law officers at the scene of trial to approximately 50.

ZALOPHUS, RINGLING YACHT, RUNS AGROUND NEAR SARASOTA

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP).—Four passengers and a crew of twelve were landed safely from the yacht Zalophus, owned by John Ringling, the circus maguate, after it went aground two miles south of here early today.

Ringling said no one was injured and only minor damage was done the craft. Belief was expressed that high tide would float it.

Earlier reports had said the Zalophus sank. Ringling however, pointed out that it ran aground in shoals unfamiliar to the pilot while being taken through a new channel called South Pass.

The passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gompretz, their niece, Miss Odette Gompretz, and William Grebe, president of the Prudence Bond Company, all of New York.

THE NEW RULING.

No doubt one of Attorney-General Mitchell's objects is to rebuke official hypocrisy and lessen scandal when he announces his determination to appoint no prohibition agents who, to his knowledge, are "drinkers." If he should apply the same test to Federal judges, at least some of whom are said to disregard the law themselves after severely punishing humble violators, his purpose would be even better served. Indeed, if it were in his power to insist that no drinking Senator or Representative should have the right to vote penalties for violation of the law, there would be less disgust and derision among the people in the presence of the spectacle of hypocrisy in high places as well as a more wholesome atmosphere about the entire matter. For those who make and then break the law are even more culpable than those who violate it while attempting its enforcement.

Attorney-General Mitchell plainly aims at a wholesome standard, but many will think that he goes too far when he declares that prosecuting or enforcement officials must "believe" in the prohibition law. When he pointed out that more than half of the 80,000 criminal cases in the Federal courts last year were under the prohibition act, did it occur to him that some of the less than half were under the tariff act, the revenue laws, the anti-trust laws and others as to the wisdom of which there is much difference of opinion? Must an honorable man fully approve of the Fordney-McCumber tariff rates before he can be trusted to serve in enforcing them? This is "not a religious test," as the Attorney-General says, but it is a political test that would keep whole political parties out of office. Such a test would disqualify many who now enforce laws which they question or disapprove of, exercising their inalienable right of freedom of opinion and conscience. To believe that legislators were misguided in making a law and to violate that law are two vastly different things.

THE RUBBER FUTURE.

Dr. O. F. Cook of the Department of Agriculture is pleased with the progress of Brazilian rubber trees planted in southern Florida experimentally. They have made rapid growth in the last two seasons, many of the young trees having a height of 15 feet or more.

These are the same sort of trees grown extensively in various tropical countries for the commercial production of rubber. That they have withstood periods of cold weather and have continued to thrive indicates to the experts that they are much more resistant to cold than has been supposed. It may be comparatively easy to develop certain strains sufficiently hardy to grow readily in southern Florida.

Similar experiments are being conducted in Arizona, Cuba, Honduras, Haiti, Panama and the Canal Zone. There are also the experiments of Edison and perhaps others who seek to get rubber from native plants and weeds. More than one of these efforts may be crowned with success. When that time comes there will be no longer any chance for a rubber monopoly by any country, and tires and other rubber products should be of excellent quality and low price.

A Chicago advertising man recently predicted a "resting period" for business this year. Business must have these periods, he says. "Such a slowing up is not harmful, giving management a chance to check up on itself, its policies and its constituent parts." The forecast was made a month ago. It is less evident now than it seemed then that this is to be be a sabbatical year for business. Revival is coming quicker and the situation now looks better than most business men expected. And there is no agreement at all among the experts that resting periods are required by the nature of things. Old-fashioned "business cycles" have pretty well flattened out, avoiding the extreme ups and downs of pre-war times. Business intelligence exercises more and more control of the economic machinery. This much may be said, anyway, regarding the present outlook. It will be a good enough year if business men themselves don't do any unnecessary resting.

"Some day," says a bacteriologist, "public opinion may support laws forcing cold victims to stay home as is now required for diseases like smallpox and diphtheria." This is because the common cold, generally contagious, is spread more easily in its early stages and because it is often the forerunner of such dangerous diseases as pneumonia or a symptom of a large number of other serious diseases from measles on up and down the list. If common sense were really common, official quarantine against the cold sufferer would not have to be considered. The victim would keep away from other persons, cover his coughs or sneezes and apply the simple known remedies. Unfortunately, many persons who are quite sensible in other ways refuse to take their own or another's cold seriously, and so help to increase its seriousness.

The supplemental report of the Wickersham commission objected to more judges as a means of handling the multitude of prohibition cases on the ground that judges are appointed for life and an increase in their number "would give us a set of permanent courts for what conceivably might prove a transient situation." Does this imply expectation of early effective enforcement or of possible repeal of the law?

AS STRAIGHT AS AN ARAB.

A traveler in North Africa some years ago was particularly impressed with the erect carriage of the native Arabs at all ages and under all circumstances.

Whether swaying back and forth on a camel's back, running along beside a train of camels or laden donkeys, or sitting upon a rock eating, the Arab always holds his trunk erect, as straight as a pine.

Dr. J. H. Kellogg, the traveler in question, was naturally of the opinion that this erectness of carriage was hereditary.

In conversation with an American who had lived among the Arabs for over thirty years he was informed that the erect carriage was the result of the most careful training from early childhood. In tents one may often hear a father or mother exclaiming: "Sit up Abraham, sit up; you look like a fool doubled up so; sit up."

The erect carriage is actually acquired by sitting tall and standing tall. That is that whether you are sitting or standing you should naturally take the poise that increases your height to the utmost.

Just see what happens; the head becomes erect, the chin is drawn backward, the chest stands out in front, and the abdomen is drawn in.

What happens to the interior of the body?

The lungs get more room, the heart also, the abdominal organs are held "high" in their proper positions so that the stomach empties itself properly, the small intestine gets its best chance to absorb the food, and the large intestine cannot get "kinked" or form loops that cause gas formation and constipation.

The difference between your height in a careless attitude and that which is correct, can easily be over an inch.

Just stand against a door frame in your usual "easy" manner. Mark your height with a pencil.

Then simply stand tall—draw in abdomen, throw chest, and draw in chin. If you mark this height you will find it about an inch more.

Now in addition to standing and sitting tall there is one set of muscles, that if developed, will give you the erectness of the Arab.

These are the front abdominal muscles.

Whether you bend over and try to touch toes with the knees straight, or lie on back and raise legs with knees straight, a number of times, twice daily, either exercise will bring results.

You'll find that you will get nearer your toes every week, or be able to raise your "heavy" feet a number of times more by persistence.

Remember the Arab got his erectness by training; he wasn't born that way.

A QUESTION of HONOR

by Ruth Cross

SYNOPSIS: Disaster threatens Scott Glenn's irrigation dam project. Ranchowners attack and dynamite a portion of the dam; then aid Glenn in filling the breach after he turns the course of the floodwaters from their homes. In the meantime his estranged bride, Anne Wilmot, fights off the advances of Leon Morse in their mountain cabin, refusing to go away with him. She drives him from the cabin, then faints. A suspicion that he has misjudged Anne develops when Delphine tells Glenn his wife needs help. Glenn goes to the cabin and finds it vacant and concludes Anne left with Morse. He confronts Morse on the trail, a fight follows and the beaten magnate, the source of all Glenn's trouble, tells him Anne drove him from the cabin. Glenn orders Morse out of the country and runs in the direction of an old washout after hearing Anne's cry.

Chapter 32

LOVE HEALS WOUNDS

A GLIMMER of something white through the trees—then Glenn rounded a sharp bend in the trail and came out in plain view of what had been the old washout. He brought up with such violent abruptness that the shock sent him staggering backward a little.

On the very edge of the chasm, now a swift, madly whirling torrent, bearing on its surface black debris, logs, uprooted trees, hovered the white, ethereal figure of Anne poised as between earth and sky. Her hair was flung loose to the wind; her filmy robe whipped in graceful little circles and eddies about bare, white ankles.

Glenn crept noiselessly and steadily forward on hands and knees. He dared not speak or call out to her. He had guessed already from the strange aloofness of her pose, from the singular cry which he had heard, that she was not herself. He knew that the slightest sound, a whisper, the crackling of a twig, might send her hurtling down over the precipice on which she swayed so perilously.

When he was still more than a yard away, she suddenly flung her arms high over her head and began to sway rhythmically to and fro—just as she had done that other night when he had been standing on the bank below to catch her in his arms. At last, his fingers clutched the fluttering tip of her white robe, closed about her ankles, then locked convulsively about her knees. A cry full of terror came from her throat as he circled with her in his arms. Then he drew her back from the death which had called so alluringly out of the treacherous whirlpool below.

He sank back with her against a tree trunk, trembling with the violence of his reaction. Then he let her down against the ground, stripped off his coat and wrapped her in it. He lifted the arm with the bandage on it and it fell back heavily. He tore a handkerchief into strips and bound the wound more tightly.

"Anne, dearest," he entreated, leaning down very close to her, "try to remember—try to tell me what has happened."

But she only stared back at him blankly. Presently he lifted her in his arms and started back towards the cabin. "Try to tell me—what—has happened," he repeated slowly and very distinctly, close to her ear.

For answer, there was only a small, cold hand fumbling uncertainly at his coat, up to his throat—then questioningly, caressingly across his face—as the blind feel for resemblances. Then with a sigh of complete reassurance, she let the hand fall again.

It was many days—days and nights of anxiety and almost intolerable suspense—before Glenn knew the whole truth. Part of it, that Anne had known nothing about the gold, he learned from Cheh, who went tiptoeing noisily about the cabin like a loose-jointed, conscience-driven old ghost. Delphine, who ruled the household with a rod of iron, and never permitted the one-time major domo so much as a peep into her immaculate kitchen, had not failed to impress upon his mind that it was he and he alone who had caused all the trouble.

Had he not put the bullet into her mad'moiselle's arm in the first place? Had he not disobeyed the M'sieur Glenn's orders about bringing her home and getting a doctor? Had she, Delphine, not been thus obliged to go away and leave her beloved mistress at the mercy of the pig of a M'sieur Morse? Had not all these causes brought it about that mad'moiselle should get the unspeakable infection in her arm, the fever and everything else?

The Lodge had been closed now for some time. It was settling back already into that abandoned, vacant-windowed aspect which it had worn before its recent rejuvenation. Burkhalter and the ranchers had found neither Morse nor Douglas there on the occasion of their unsolicited visit. From an old man whom they routed out of the servants' quarters—Jarvis had, it seemed, been left to finish the packing—they had learned only that everybody was gone—presumably back to New York.

One morning some weeks after the eventful night on which Glenn had saved his reservoir but so nearly lost the woman he loved, Anne opened her eyes, sane and clear of fever for the first time, into his. For some moments, they looked at one another in silence.

Anne reached out and touched his hand where it lay on the edge of the coverlet—questioningly. "You are safe——?" she said.

"Of course." He let his other hand close reassuringly over hers—but not too vigorously. Her reality seemed still uncertain and elusive.

"All this time—I couldn't quite be sure——" For the first time, her eyes left his, went wandering over the room in puzzled silence. Then, "I did go away—you told me to go, and—I went——"

Glenn nodded. "Yes, you went away, but—I brought you back. Now—I hope you're going to want to stay."

"It was strange——" Anne's mind was groping back slowly and painfully along unused paths to that last tense scene which was burned indelibly into her memory. "I thought I heard your step—outside on the stones. I was just fighting for time—thinking every moment surely you would come—I don't know what kind of a story I did make up to tell him——"

"It wasn't true then—the story?" Glenn carried her hand to his lips, buried his face for a moment against it. It was very difficult to keep his voice steady and—casual.

"Of course not," she laughed a little. "I had to tell him something, didn't I?"

"Of course you did."

"But it was queer," her mind labored back again to the thing that puzzled her, "I was positive I heard your step outside, and I said to myself that I knew you would come when I needed you so much—I felt as if I couldn't possibly hold out another moment—and then—— But I must have been mistaken—it wasn't you—it wasn't anybody!"

Glenn fought down the impulse to throw himself on the floor beside her, to tell her that she had not been mistaken, that he had failed her, that he had been blind, stupid, brutal—that he did not deserve her love, her loyalty.

"And then," she went on, lifting herself a little in the pillows, "I saw my old sweater on the couch, and——"

Glenn leaned over her, his heart beating painfully. "And then—?" he encouraged gently.

"I pretended I had fainted—I didn't have to pretend much!" Her mouth twisted in the derisive little smile he knew so well.

"Of course not, with your arm," he said quietly.

"He laid me on the couch, and I got the revolver out of the sweater pocket and—drove him out of the room. And—oh, yes, bolted the door of course. That's all I seem to remember——" Her brows contracted in a puzzled frown.

Glenn had fallen on his knees beside her; he was covering her hands, her arms to the elbows, with kisses. "Don't try to remember any more," he said in a voice that choked a little, "the rest doesn't matter——" Morse had, after all, told him the truth.

"I suppose," Anne said, "they're all back in New York now—Leon, Mr. Douglas, my aunt of course—"

"Probably," Glenn assented.

A silence fell between them. Finally, he laid one arm about her shoulders. "You're not—just the least bit—sorry?" he said.

She lifted her eyes to his. "Yes—sorry I didn't come years ago—to you," she whispered back, not very steadily.

WEST SHOKAN.

West Shokan, Feb. 3.—On Sunday Old Sol shone through a bit during the morning, affording opportunity to an inquisitive bear or chuck to see his shadow, which, without doubt, caused a hasty retreat to his winter fastness for another six weeks of tranquil repose. ## Novelty Enters the Hosiery Field

(Copyright, 1930, by Fairchild)

Stockings are beginning to take on several interesting and novel aspects. The day of the plain, unobtrusive stocking seems to be threatened as pin dots and clocks, gain smart recognition.

At the lower left, a sports sock in natural, undyed Tussor silk with turn-down cuff featuring a drop-stitch.

Next, an all-silk spiral knit stocking distinguished for its tweed-like texture and appearance.

The next two seamless net stockings, featuring respectively an all-over pattern and striped effect, are adapted for evening wear. The lustre which usually characterizes silk hosiery, is purposely eliminated in these models by means of the special construction process used to give them a crepe-like appearance.

BEADS AND EMBROIDERY OF SEVERAL SORTS ANTICIPATED

New York—It is an open secret that designers are encouraging the use of embroidery, and making an effort to revive the beaded dress. It is not so long ago that beaded frocks were a mania, and no one ever expected to see the night when a substitute worthy of them would be found. With the usual clean sweep characteristic of fashion beads were suddenly vanished from sight, and every Eve's daughter of us stoutly voiced a preference for the classic, absolutely untrimmed gown. Silhouette rather than embellishment became the dominating factor. The result of course has been a wealth of lovely dresses in which line was paramount, with costly material secondary in importance.

Next came laces, with an occasional beaded attempt being made by Chanel who also was instrumental, if not altogether successful, in trying to revive fringe. With the advent of spring, and a natural inclination to celebrate its coming with a new mode, embroidery has become an engaging feature, and beading is quite naturally returning.

The coarse net frock, a winter favorite, is glorified by the introduction of beads, and of sparkling paillettes or spangles. Such a frock makes a wide appeal and is shown in lines suitable to the average figure.

Evening dresses, like all others, show a disposition to acknowledge the waistline. When it is not feasible to mold the figure, a discreet blouse may indicate the natural waistline. The princess line, a generally accepted one, is frequently softened by the use of a supplementary bolero.

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 4 (AP).—The will of Eva March Tappan, Ph. D., a former teacher in the Worcester High School and for many years prominent as an author of text books, filed for probate today, leaves the bulk of an estate estimated at about $200,000 to Vassar College, her alma mater, to establish the "Eva March Tappan Scholarship Fund for Vassar College," the beneficiaries of which will be young women, residents of Worcester county. A portion of the income of a trust fund will be available immediately for such scholarships which will be awarded by the Worcester Bank and Trust Company as trustees. In this capacity the trust department of the bank is given full say, not only in the selection of the girls who will benefit but in the amounts of the scholarships.

Miss Tappan in the will directs her trustee to exercise a "broad discretion" in this respect and "make provision for partially or entirely defraying the expenses, including living and educational expenses."

"WHY NO CUTTING —AT THE— French Dye Works, Inc."

In an effort to stem the rising tide of cheap competition, six of the eight big cleaners of New York State have cut the price of men's suits from $1.50 to $1.00.

We think the remedy is worse than the disease. Many other cleaners have tried it, always with disastrous results to the industry. Take New York city for instance. Ask any supply drummer how many cleaners he dares sell there on open account.

Let's reason this thing out.

Unfortunately, standard dry cleaning is not a tangible product that can be taken apart and examined. It is a long series of processes carried out in accordance with certain standards of practice carefully worked out in the United States Bureau of Standards. Each step performs some necessary function, and the whole series is so designed and co-ordinated as to give the greatest possible cleansing action with the least possible wear and tear and no harmful after effects.

Since the pressing machine supplanted the hand iron and cut the old standard price of $2.00 to $1.50, there have been no developments in methods or machines to justify any further reduction.

Research has been directed more along the line of raising the quality than of lowering the price.

How then, can cleaners make any money at cut prices?

So Dollar Cleaning is like the Ford car. It is all right for those who want it and it is worth all it costs. But lots of folks want Buicks and Hudsons, and Packards, etc. And lots of folks still want Standard Dry Cleaning. And that is what we are still giving them at $1.50 a suit.

9 out of 10 Screen Stars use Lux Toilet Soap

It has swept across the world from Hollywood to Europe

"NO beauty is more important to a girl than alluring smooth skin." So says William A. Seiter, prominent First National director, summing up what 45 leading Hollywood directors have found out from their experience with motion pictures.

"A screen star must pass the most merciless test—the great close-up lights find out the slightest flaw in the skin," he goes on to say. "But the owner of a skin which can pass this test has the support of an immense adoring public."

It is because alluringly smooth skin is so vital for success on the screen that of the 521 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 511 are simply devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. And all the great film studios have made it the official soap for their dressing rooms.

The Broadway stage stars are equally enthusiastic about this soap, so daintily fragrant and white. And now, too, the screen stars of the European capitals have adopted Lux Toilet Soap! To keep their skin as faultlessly smooth as the American stars keep theirs.

You will love the way it keeps your skin silken-smooth! And such generous lather as it gives, even in very hard water. Order several cakes of Lux Toilet Soap—today.

CORINNE GRIFFITH, First National's charmingly beautiful star, says: "The thing I like best about Lux Toilet Soap is the wonderful smoothness of my skin after it!"

The terrific glare from the huge incandescent lights used for the close-up finds Corinne Griffith's fair skin beautifully smooth, without a single flaw.

The hospital now olves a fixed sum from the city of Kingston for the care of city charges. is amount falls considerably short of paying the actual cost of the service d some adjustment should be made to meet this situation.

The Board of Managers desires to express its appreciation for the loyal d efficient services rendered during the past year by the surgical and medl staff, hospital staff and the employes.

Standing in Legion Drive

Marlborough with an average of 188 now leads the seven American Legion Posts in the Ulster County Council membership drive which ends next August. At that time the Post showing the highest average increase extending over a four-year period will receive a trophy, presented at a big Legion rally featured by a parade that will be led by Kingston Post Drum Corps.

Standings of the Ulster County Posts in the membership drive are as follows:

| | 1930 | 4-year Average | 1929 | Batting Average. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 Marlborough | 41 | 24 | 34 | 1.88 |
| 2 Phoenicia | 36 | 28 | 32 | 1.30 |
| 3 Saugerties | 122 | 102 | 120 | 1.20 |
| 4 New Paltz | 46 | 49 | 56 | .92 |
| 5 Kingston | 400 | 559 | 528 | .71 |
| 6 Ellenville | 35 | 53 | 48 | .66 |
| 7 Highland | 10 | 28 | 32 | .36 |
| | 692 | 836 | 836 | |

With 692 members in, Ulster has 64% of its quota of 1,075, which it must reach by August 1. This quota will be entirely possible if Kingston gets the 750 members which the local post has promised.

The biggest news in the county membership contest during the past two weeks is that Phoenicia and Saugerties joined Marlborough in going over the top and having now more paid-up members than these Posts had at the end of 1929, and there are months to go in 1930.

Highland has at last felt the urge of the county competition and sent in 10 memberships. Commander Myron Smith of that Post says that Highland will beat all former records now that they are off to a good start.

The boys in Marlborough have already provided a shelf in their Post rooms in that village for the county commander's membership cup which they claim is as good as in their hands. If present plans mature, the cup will be presented next August to the Post winning at a big Legion county rally and parade, which will be headed by the Kingston Post Drum Corps. Some of the other five Posts of the county have promised that Marlborough will have to get more members than they have now if they want to cinch that membership cup. Kingston Legionnaires may have something to say about this before August 1 rolls around.

"UNCLE SAM AT YOUR SERVICE" — Defending The Nation — By Quig Stan

(All rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service—Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office)

It has been said that the story of the Army is the history of the United States. It is a fascinating story, interwoven with stirring events in the building of the Nation. Until recent years, Americans have known little of their peace-time Army. Yet it has had at least 12 year's peace to every one of actual war, and during normal times it has made an enviable record in aiding the country's development. Our review of the War Department of 1930, will include the Regular Army, the National Guard and the Organized Reserves. We will portray the activities of the various branches of the service; show something of the traditions, customs and life of a soldier—both the private and the West Pointer. Which action shall we picture first? Air Service, Signal Corps, Coast Artillery, Chemical Warfare, Ordnance, West Point, etc.—which? Write to the editor of this paper.

The Department of Justice guards the laws of the United States. In following the activities of the head of this department, the Attorney General, and his assistants, many of our scenes will be laid in court rooms, in the dens of plotters against the Government, and in Federal prisons. The Attorney General defends the interests of the U. S. in cases before the Supreme Court. All U. S. District Attorneys and U. S. Marshals are members of his staff. In this office is the "Scotland Yard of America," the Bureau of Investigations. Its Criminal Identification Records are unsurpassed anywhere and its corps of experts is gaining world renown. # Judge Considers Study of Divinity

The meeting of the Kingston Ministerial Association on Friday at which Judge Clearwater spoke on "Church Unity" was one of the most largely attended in a long time. With two exceptions, the entire membership of the association was present.

A fine luncheon was served by the ladies of the Church of the Comforter. The judge, being the only guest, was asked if he would not say a word to them. He said that following the example of St. Paul, he would speak gladly and wished to say that in conception, completion and execution of service, the luncheon was so superb that having eaten of it to satisfaction, he felt somewhat as did Agrippa after listening to the oratory of St. Paul, almost the ladies had persuaded him to abandon the law and take up the study of divinity in the hope of being invited to come again.

He convulsed his clerical audience by telling them that at a dinner on the evening preceding his address, a charming woman acquaintance said to him, "I could tell all your dominies tonight what you will tell them tomorrow." "And what will that be," asked the judge. "Well," said she, "you will tell them that if they hope to be saved they must all join the First Dutch Church."

IN 3 WEEKS KIDNEY, BLADDER, STOMACH TROUBLES DISAPPEAR
Tanlac Only Medicine To Reach This Stubborn Case
The way Tanlac takes hold of your troubles and ends them would seem almost unbelievable were it not for the experiences of thousands of men and women who have put it to the test and have found themselves restored to health, freed from so-called rheumatism, stomach, kidney, liver and bladder troubles by the use of this super medicine. Here's one man, Mr. Charles L. Stults, a carpenter and cabinet maker who suffered night and day for years until Tanlac put an end to his troubles and made him a new man. "I suffered from a rundown condition for 3 or 4 years. I also had some kidney and bladder troubles as well as indigestion, gastritis and pains in stomach and side, chest and shoulders. I had lost considerable weight and my sleep was disturbed 4 or 5 times a night. I often had tried other things which failed to help me but after I had taken 3 bottles of Tanlac my kidney, bladder trouble and pains disappeared and never returned. I now sleep well and my pep and weight have all been recovered." Tanlac gives results and gives them quick for every herb, bark and root in it is a strong potent medicine. Like all good things it has its imitators but remember while others make glowing promises Tanlac is the ONE real medicine that backs its claims with a guarantee of money refunded if it does not help you. Do not accept a substitute. At your druggist.

APPARENTLY AFFECTIONATE DESPITE DIVORCE.

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—An affectionate meeting of William B. Leeds, Jr., and his divorced wife, the former Princess Xenia of Russia, at which they insisted they intended to remain good friends, was described in today's New York American. They met in the Leeds Greenwich Village residence, issued a statement, kissed and parted, calling each other "Billy" and "Tommy".

This is the statement:

"The divorce judgment which has been filed was not caused by any quarrels or disagreement. We remain perfectly good friends and expect to remain so despite the divorce.

"The financial arrangements were a matter of private agreement and the custody of the only child of the marriage was given to the mother, with full right of visitation to the father.

"The princess intends to divide her time between this country and Europe, but the daughter will be brought up and educated in America.

"We emphatically deny the divorce was caused by a wish on the part of either of us to remarry. Any rumors to the contrary are absolutely false.

"The Princess Xenia has in no way altered her attitude toward Anastasia, and her espousal of Anastasia's cause was with full knowledge of Mr. Leeds."

After writing the statement Leeds and his former wife parted with kisses and climbed over washtubs in the basement to leave by a rear window to avoid reporters and cameramen.

"So long, Tommy, I'll see you soon," was Mr. Leeds's parting. The former princess echoed the words.

The person referred to in the statement as Anastasia is the woman for whom the claim is made that she is the Princess Anastasia, daughter of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia, who it is claimed escaped the fate of other members of the imperial family. She came to this country as the guest of Mrs. Leeds.

It will be shown at the Spring Glen Grange on Tuesday, February 4 and at the Ulster Park Grange on Wednesday, February 5. Mr. Joy will also talk briefly at each of these meetings.

News of the Day In Wall Street

New York, Feb. 4.—Control of the Trans-Continental Air Transport-Maddux Lines, Inc., according to reports in financial circles, has been acquired by the Pennroad Corporation, securities affiliate of the Pennsylvania railroad. The air line furnishes transcontinental passage in conjunction with the Pennsylvania. The latter company recently released Daniel Schaeffer, head of its passenger transportation service, to become chairman of the T. A. T. Executive Committee. This fact is looked upon as tending to confirm the report that the railroad's interest in the air line is a dominant one.

A total of $18,215,000 in new securities were placed on the market today by New York banking houses and syndicates. The largest individual offering is an $14,000,000 foreign bond issue.

The time limit under which stock of the F. & W. Grand 5-10-25 Cent Stores, Inc., and Isaac Silver & Bros., Inc., may be deposited for shares of the F. & W. Grand Silver Stores, Inc., has been extended from February 1 to March 1.

More and More Colds Treated Externally
Demand for Vicks, Pioneer of "No Dosing" Method, Grows at Amazing Rate.

A generation ago, when Vicks Vapo-Rub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."
Best for Children
Mothers especially appreciate Vicks, because it checks colds without risk of upsetting children's delicate stomachs. Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, "drawing out" tightness and soreness; and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.
Good for Adults
Year after year the demand for Vicks has grown until it is now the family standby for colds in more than 60 countries. Used largely at first for children's colds, actual use in millions of homes has proved it equally effective for adults.
Now "20" Million!
To keep pace with this ever-growing demand, the famous Vicks slogan—"17 Million Jars Used Yearly," was raised to "21 Million" a short time ago. This figure, too, has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 25 Million Jars Used Yearly"—a jar for every family in the United States.

Why some accounts are declined

If you buy anything on credit, and fail to pay promptly when due.
If you agree to pay within thirty days and take longer.
If you break your promise to pay an obligation.
If you fail to advise your creditor if it is impossible to pay as agreed, and give the reason why.
If you overlook an opportunity to improve your credit record, for it follows you wherever you go, and, if good, gives you prestige in the community.
If you neglect your accounts in such a manner that it is necessary for you to seek credit; but be one of the many whose accounts are solicited by the merchants.
If you demand unreasonable adjustment of your petty grievances from your merchant.
If you merely shop for amusement, order merchandise that you don't want, and later return it for credit.
PROMPT PAY CREATES CREDIT.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—Prices of the main body of stocks moved higher in today's session of the New York Stock Exchange, but weak spots cropped out now and then, giving the market the appearance of irregularity. Trading showed a marked falling off in volume, but this may have been due in part to power trouble which temporarily halted the operation of thousands of tickers in New York and some of the other eastern cities.

Cutting of the German Reichsbank's rediscount rate from 6½ to 6 per cent following a cut from 3½ to 3 in the Bank of France rate last week, is believed to have increased the possibility of lower Bank of England and New York Federal Reserve rediscount rates. Call money renewed unchanged at 4½ per cent.

Rails continued to give a good demonstration of group strength despite the disappointing character of recent traffic and earnings reports, and the request for a withdrawal of merger applications by the Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Wabash and Delaware and Hudson Railroads.

Heavy selling of Gillette Safety Razor, which broke 5 points to 97¾, the lowest price in more than a year, featured the early afternoon trading. National Cash Register declined 2 points.

Columbus Gas was heavily bought, advancing nearly 5 points while Houston Oil and Worthington Pump sold 3 to 4 points higher.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Frank Hyatt and son of West New York are visiting at the home of Mrs. Hyatt's sister, Mrs. Fred Adsit. Mrs. Hyatt before her marriage was Miss Catherine Every of Shokan.

William H. Krom of Mombaccus is spending a few days at the home of Sylvester Wells of Giles Road. Mr. Krom, and a farm in the Rochester village, and is enjoying a vacation here before returning home to tap his maple sugar bush.

Mrs. Sarah Boll and daughter, Hazel, have written to a number of their friends in Shokan, advising them of their safe arrival at Monmouth, Ill., and telling of the pleasant visit they are having with relatives in the west.

On February 4, 1878, the death of Truman D. Merrihew, tax collector of Olive, took place. On the 7th of that month the town board met at the house of Hiram Barton in Olive City and appointed Jacob K. Crispell to the collectorship.

One of the most enjoyable social affairs of the month was the birthday party given on the evening of January 27 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barringer in honor of the 85th birthday of Mr. Barringer's mother, Mrs. Sarah Barringer. Those present at the party besides Mrs. Barringer, were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lane, the Misses Gussie and Lena Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Every and children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morris, Mrs. John Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Golden Van Benschoten, Mr. and Mrs. George Giles, Mrs. George Vonder Osten, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Markle and Homer Markle, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Hazzie Wager and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barringer.

Local movie fans, who took in the picture "Sunnyside Up," at the Kingston Theatre last week, say the show was well worth going down to see, even with the mercury hovering around the zero mark. Some declared Janet Gaynor's picture to be almost as laugh provoking as "The Cockeyed World," a film which made a great hit with many Olive fans last November.

On February 5, 1877, at the request of Thomas Cornell, the oath of office of railroad commissioner for the town of Olive was taken at Kingston by the Messrs. DeWitt C. Davis, Egbert R. Matthews and Albert North. In the years following the completion of the old Rondout & Oswego railroad, the town was heavily bonded as a result of the improvement, and prominent men were appointed to act as commissioners to take care of the financial part of the project. Mr. Davis was a surveyor and justice of the peace, while his colleagues, Mr. Matthews, who was the father of Delancey N. Mathews, and Mr. North, were leading business men of the west side section.

Thomas Vesta, the new Prudential Insurance Company's agent for this section, was a business caller here last Friday.

Judge David L. Windrum on Thursday evening, January 30, entertained a party of friends at his home on North Boulevard in honor of the new and retiring town boards. To insure the satisfaction of the inner man, Judge Windrum had secured the services of Isaiah Shultis as chef, and the culinary efforts of the genial Isaiah resulted in a banquet that admittedly was a masterpiece. Oyster stew, roast turkey, chicken and goose, homemade pies, and good "smokes" were some of the things which went to make the banquet enjoyable. The Rev. Thomas Braithwaite acted as toastmaster, and others who were present included: Harry Braithwaite, Supervisor Chester Lyons; Collector John Marshall, Justices Fred Weidner, Lester Davis and Lewis Thiel; Mr. Myers and son, Horace, of Samsonville; John Kelder and son, Abel North, and Mine Host Windrum.

Mrs. James Bush of Olive Bridge spent a few days recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carter and her grandmother, Mrs. Jane Bogart, of the Coons district.

A memorable event in local musical annals was the convention of the Ulster County Musical Society held in Kingston on February 3, 1871. A number of persons from Shokan attended the evening concert, which was held in Music Hall and addressed by Professor Bliss of Chicago. There was an audience of 1,200 people present at this concert.

William Personeus has discontinued trapping for this season. While Mr. Personeus has had very good success with his traps thus far, he is of the opinion that the low prices which are current for skins do not compensate for the time and trouble involved in their taking. Skunk skins which last year brought five dollars, now sell for a dollar; muskrat skins, of which "Bill" has secured twenty-four this winter, sell for $2.50. It is said of one local man that he recently took a skunk skin to Kingston to sell and was offered only ten cents for the pelt, which so disgusted the gentleman that he brought his wares back home with him.

Most of the up-to-date styles in wall paper are being displayed at the village store this month. There are a number of sample books and paper selected from these is immediately ordered and promptly received, it is said.

Mrs. Virgil Bogart of Alligerville is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Jane Bogart.

The friends here of Mrs. E. Stewart Winchell, were sorry to learn of the death of that estimable lady, which took place on January 28, at Hemlock, Mich. Mrs. Winchell before her marriage was Miss Inez Markle, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol. Markle. She was a sister of Mrs. R. W. Longyear of Shokan, and of the late Clarence Markle and Carrie (Markle) Bush. Mrs. Winchell grew up in Shokan, on the old Markle homestead, but for many years prior to her death she had lived in Michigan.

A social event of Thursday, February 3, 1848, was the donation party given during the afternoon and evening at the residence of the Rev. Samuel Hablow, a Reformed minister of that period. The Rev. Mr. Harlow was the father of the late Parr Harlow, writer, preacher and schoolmaster, and he was also the grandfather of the late William Harlow, well known newspaper man, and Mrs. Inez Dumont, of Shokan and Catskill.

Monday Club

The Monday Club was entertained on Monday afternoon by Mrs. Higginson at The Huntington, Mrs. Lawton, the president, presiding. Club members were asked to come prepared next week to express themselves as to a study subject for next year. Mrs. Goodrich, librarian of the Kingston City Library, was the guest speaker on Monday afternoon and greatly interested her hearers in what she had to tell of "The Library as a Community Center." Mrs. Goodrich told briefly but delightfully of the first libraries known to ancient history many centuries B. C. Then she described the library of early days in England and finally spoke of the American city library ending with an account of many facts regarding our own library in the city of Kingston that was news to most of her hearers. One point emphasized was the need of two branches of our library, to be open a few days each week, both uptown and downtown. Mrs. Goodrich's paper was highly appreciated and complimented. After the paper Mrs. Higginson served afternoon tea. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Lawton.

News from the World on Wheels

An attempt to smash Major Segrave's automobile speed record of 231 miles an hour will be made in late spring, according to word received by Firestone Tire and Rubber Company racing tire experts today from Norman "Wizard" Smith, crack Australian racer. Smith's announcement followed cable dispatches that the racer had made a new world's record for 10 miles, January 17, with an average of 148.637 miles an hour on the 90-mile beach at Kaitaia, New Zealand. In December Smith broke the Australian one-mile record of 109 miles an hour and established a new one of 128 miles an hour. These two records are part of a program laid by Smith and his backers to prepare for the greatest ambition in an automobile racer's life. Firestone Gum-Dipped tires were used on the car in both record-breaking attempts and will be used on a new racing car which is under construction.

The Gulf Refining Company is announcing a new gasoline 400° F end point—anti-knock quality—at no extra cost. One of the local officials of this company explains the end point of gasoline in a very simple and convincing manner—He says: "that ordinary gasolines have an end point of 437° F— that such gasolines do not vaporize quickly enough to allow perfect and complete combustion — consequently there are some wet ends or raw gasoline left in the combustion chamber which must find a way out". "This raw gasoline passes down the cylinder walls taking with it more or less of the film from the sides of cylinders and pistons — dropping into the crank case, it dilutes or thins down the lubricating oil which reduces its lubricating value— at 400° end point that Good Gulf Gasoline vaporizes to the last drop. This cuts down choking and gives quicker starting.'

ADMIRES AMERICANS DESPITE INCONSISTENCIES

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 4 (AP).—The United States still retains "its Anglo-Saxon soul," despite the contention that the nation is a "melting pot," the Right Rev. F. L. Deane, Episcopal bishop of Aberdeen, Scotland, told professional men last night.

"We joke about America and Americans at times, but that's because we feel we are privileged because of our friendship," he said.

"You Americans invented the League of Nations, you know, and then wouldn't join it; you invented the treaty of Versailles and wouldn't sign it; you invented the cocktail and now you won't drink it.

"Despite these occasional inconsistencies we admire you immensely," Bishop Deane added.

"We admire the cheerfulness and fortitude with which you met that Wall Street crash that would most certainly have spread ruin in any other nation."

SINCE BABY'S COME

Since Baby's come the bathroom, I
Possess no means my form to dry.
So I when from the tub rebound,
I imitate the humble hound.
The soap is hid in a retreat,
Since baby thought it good to eat.
My banishment is only right
My bath is not a cunning sight.
Attempts at shaving all were queered;
That's why I wear this flowing beard,
To clean my pearly teeth I slink
Out to the kitchen and its sink.
I wait for my paternal bath
And only rise up in my wrath
When rubber duck or fish of tin
Lurks in the tub I'm seated in.

A great philosopher has said, "The most utterly lost of all days is that in which you have not laughed."

At last the player became bunkered in one of the most impregnable hazards on the course, and, after endeavoring to dislodge the ball with every club in his armory, turned to the caddie and asked feebly, "What shall I take now?"

The caddie looked at the golfer with a gleam of hope in his eye.

"Poison," he suggested gloomily.

THE BIG SHOT

by FRANK L. PACKARD

SYNOPSIS: Alone in the world, Enid Howard forsakes her native Canada for a career as a writer in New York City. Seeking inspiration for a book Enid, with a self assurance born of her rugged environment, becomes a habitue of the picturesque places of the East Side, home of poverty and haven of the lawless. A chance meeting with Phil Martin, a reporter for the Herald-Star leads to several delightful midnight suppers in Joe Caprillo's Gondola restaurant. Martin tells Enid of his quest for identification and capture of the "Big Shot" recognized by police as the leader of all New York gangdom. Shive Frank, a gangster whom Martin befriended, repays with information concerning the Big Shot who he suspects was known as Hal Varney and promises Martin a picture of the man.

Chapter 2

SHADOWED!

ENID HOWARD leaned forward tensely as her companion paused with a far off look in his gray eyes.

"Go on," she urged. "I'm going as soon as I've heard the rest of your story. Then you'll be able to eat in peace."

"On that basis, I'd like to drag it out," he told her impulsively. "But I'm afraid there isn't much more to tell. Shive and I, separately and together, tried to locate Varney but failed. Shive couldn't find the photograph, and we had little to go on.

"And then, just as I was beginning to think we were up against a stone wall Shive telephoned me today that he'd not only found the photograph but had track of Varney himself. I'm to meet Shive here later tonight."

He paused as he reached the end of his tale. "That's all there is to it—now. What do you think of it?"

She was silent for a moment, her eyes on the greasy little Joe Caprillo at his desk from which he watched the patrons of his restaurant.

"I think," she said at last, "that eventually you will get the Big Shot, and that your paper will score its scoop, thanks to you; but I cannot help feeling that however much the Big Shot is 'wanted,' I wish it were Shive Frank instead, that you were after. He is despicable beyond words. And I wish, too"—she hesitated slightly—"that your success might come through some other medium. Do you mind me saying that?"

"No," he said gravely. "As a matter of fact, I agree with you, though I think the end amply justifies the means in this case. It isn't nice. But there is no other way."

"I suppose not," she admitted reluctantly. "Anyway I want to thank you for telling me the story," she smiled in a quick, friendly way—"trusting me with it. And now I must go! It's an unconscionable hour!" She thrust out her wrist watch for him to see. "Half-past twelve!"

Martin was gazing at her intently. Hesitantly, he spoke. "It's none of my business, of course, and I haven't the slightest right to say it, except that—well, I just feel I ought to as a—friend—if you will let me call myself that. I know a lot more about conditions around here in this locality than you do. You're too dashed pretty and attractive to be unaccompanied to joints like this. It's risky and dangerous."

He was too obviously sincere to be misunderstood. Even that determined jaw looked a little more determined now in his earnestness. She answered him in like measure.

"I have never been molested," she said quietly; "and I think that a girl who minds her own business has very little to fear. Besides I feel quite sure I can take care of myself. I've been more or less brought up that way, you see. And I have a pistol for emergencies!"

"Good heavens!" he exclaimed, and his eyes strayed to her little black handbag. "You don't mean to say that you've got one here?"

"Perhaps," she smiled.

"Well in spite of all that, I think this sort of thing is dangerous; and, above all, I do not think it is safe for you to walk from here alone and at night to the neighborhood where you live."

Enid stiffened suddenly in her chair. "How do you know where I live?" she demanded sharply.

"I followed you," he confessed calmly.

"Oh!" Her face flushed with anger. "Somehow I did not think that you would do that!"

The dream of every reporter—a scoop—was the goal of Phil Martin.

"I have followed you every night, either by myself or with Shive Frank." He searched her face. "Surely you understand. Surely you know why. It couldn't possibly have been to pry upon you—could it?"

She felt the color flood her face. She knew she had been hasty in her judgment. She owed him amends. He had been genuinely concerned about her.

"I am sorry I said that," she said frankly. "I—I am quite sure you were prompted only by kindness; but you must never do such a thing again, for I cannot agree with you that there is even the slightest cause for alarm."

"Well," her companion said as she rose to go, "there is no alternative. But if you won't let me go with you, you will be careful, won't you?" he asked earnestly.

"I am always careful," she said with a mischievous smile, as she held out her hand. "Good-night."

He echoed her words but the gray eyes that followed her trim and dainty figure through the door were clouded with a troubled and anxious look.

As Enid Howard walked towards home, she was singing. Not aloud, of course. A girl couldn't sing at that hour of night on Third avenue without inviting attention. The song was really in the lightness of her steps, in the poise of her head and the tinge of heightened color in her cheeks. She told herself she was unaccountably happy. She knew it was because of Phil Martin; she was sure he was what he said he was.

She turned off the avenue onto a side street and headed towards the East river. Then the song went out of her heart to be supplanted by a flurry of alarm. Behind her she heard the sound of a man's footsteps. She quickened her steps, the man quickened his. She was being followed.

Enid courageously faces the man who follows her and receives a shock—in tomorrow's installment.

MRS. CASSIDY ACTIVE AND IN GOOD HEALTH AT AGE OF 90

Mrs. Julia Cassidy celebrated 90th birthday at her home in Hickory Bush on February 2. It is interesting that she has a sister living at the present time on Long Island.

Mrs. Cassidy has been a resident of Ulster county for seven years, locating in Hickory Bush at that time with her twin sister. The sister, however, remained only about one year and then returned to Long Island, finding life in the country too quiet to suit her. Mrs. Cassidy enjoys good health and goes about the daily duties of keeping house for a son, William Cassidy.

She has three living children, two daughters and a son, fourteen grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. Her husband, a Civil War veteran, died about twenty years ago.

Up to a year ago she walked a distance of four miles to and from church each Sunday. She spends her leisure time listening to radio and never fails to read the daily newspapers, without aid of spectacles. Also votes regularly at elections.

Customs Change

Offer a woman of today a pinch of snuff and she will be quite as much offended as a Victorian dame by the offer of a cirgarette. Yet a century ago the invitation of snuff would have been accepted without demur.

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the stockholders of Everett & Treadwell Company for the election of three directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting, will be held at the office of the company at 534-536 Broadway, Kingston, New York, on the 15th day of February at three o'clock in the afternoon.

Butterworth Great All Time Yale Fullback

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—The fine "old" man of Yale football, superhero of the days when Frank Hinkey, "Pudge" Heffelfinger, "Kid" Wallace and a host of other legendary figures roamed the Eli playing fields, looks down from the hills of Connecticut and isn't at all pleased with what has happened to football today.

He is Frank B. Butterworth, "old" only in that he captained the Yale Varsity of 1894. He played three raging years of football with Hinkey, fashioned for himself a place among the all-time fullbacks, and could kick with any man who ever laced on a football shoe. Today he roams his estate in the hills of Mt. Carmel, Conn., a country gentleman with his riding horses, polo ponies, donkey and dogs, close enough to Yale to be the friend and confidant of another generation of pigskin warriors, yet far enough away to be able to live in the rural surroundings he loves.

Despite the gray hairs that traces through his straight black hair, he looks as though he still could play fullback for Yale or run a fast half mile as he used to. He is tall, broad-shouldered, very little above the 162 pounds he toted in those bygone Eli backfields. Two of his sons, Ben and Frank, followed in his cleat marks at Yale and Frank was a whale of a heavyweight fighting prospect.

"Football may have been rougher," he said, "but it was a game of players and not of plays in the old days. Professional spirit and direction dominates the game today. Students are losing interest. Ultimately we may have to go to some new game, some blood-brother of present day football, to rebuild the old sporting contests of the past.

"Those really interested in football used to come out to the big contests to see Heffelfinger battle his old friend from Princeton. Now it is the struggle of Zimmke's underground pass against Doofoddy's wing system. It is a highly commercialized pastime, with the individual forgotten in the university's competition for 'good dates,' and big receipts to pay for stadia and expensive athletic programs.

"Of course football today has done many fine things for some colleges. For instance it has helped Notre Dame build up the splendid traditions of success that Yale used to glory in, provided buildings, interested alumni and turned into something fine. Knute Rockne builds players, not plays. He makes men."

Yale, so Frank Butterworth believes, is drifting back to the old system of coaching, where former stars and captains came back to develop individuals into great teams, drilled and hammered and lived with the men, respected by them and loved. The best sign, he says, is the appearance of Adam Walsh in Yale coaching ranks. Walsh learned that system from Rockne at Notre Dame who in turn was taught by Alonzo Stagg, one of old Eli's bulwarks.

Hudson Boys Club At Port Ewen

Thursday night the regular weekly basketball game at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, will be played between Spinny's Radio Five and the Hudson Boys' Club. According to all indications the game will be an interesting one.

The Radio men are anxious to see what they can do against the Hudson Boys, who now stand even with the Y. M. C. A. after two games. It is the intention of the Spinny team to beat the up-staters in a decisive manner, but the Boys Club likely will visit Port Ewen with a very strong lineup thus protecting itself against an overwhelming attack.

After the game there will be dancing from 10 until 12 o'clock. The pastime will be interspersed by a novelty dance act, which will be put on by Roger Keough who has an entirely new routine for the performance.

Hebrews Beat Stone Ridge

The Y. M. H. A. quintet evened matters with Stone Ridge Monday night at the Downtown Jewish Community Center by scalping the Ridgers 51-37. Some time in the future the "rubber" game will be played on a neutral court.

The Hebrews, who lost to Stone Ridge at that place last week, got a good start Monday and rolled up 24 points in the first half. During the same period the Stone Ridge team totalled only eight markers.

At the outset of the second half, the Stone Ridge boys started a scoring rampage and gleaned 12 points in eight minutes. Then the Hebrews solved their attack and put a stop to the scoring, at the same time raging enough shots to boost their tally by a large margin.

Wilson Signs With Cubs.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The National Boxing Association, bent upon the task of picking up the wrestling pieces and putting them together under uniform control, has discovered that it will take more than a brand new set of rules and regulations to pin this elusive sport to the mat.

The N. B. A., in fact, already has been tossed for a couple of falls in its efforts to bring some order out of chaos. First, the Illinois Athletic Commission abruptly put the lid down on wrestling altogether, after plans for a heavyweight championship tournament fell through. Secondly, the Rhode Island State Athletic Commission has withdrawn in a huff from the N. B. A. because of the outspoken objections of its chairman, Edward C. Foster, to the wrestling policy pursued by the president of the N. B. A., Stanley Isaacs of Cincinnati.

Foster makes the charge that the N. B. A. "has lost itself to being a matchmaking and promotional body for the clique of wrestlers controlled by such men as Ed White of Chicago, Ray Fabianna of Philadelphia, and Al Haft of Columbus and Cincinnati."

If so, the N. B. A. has been singularly unsuccessful. As Ed Wray points out in the St. Louis Post Dispatch, the only formal entry received so far for the so-called "championship tournament" is that of John Pesek.

Cliques of wrestling promoters, sometimes operating regular circuits in the East, West and South for their performers on pachyderms, have controlled wrestling for some time. The situation is much the same as that in boxing except that the ring cliques now have much more of the grand manner, with the 500 millionaires of Madison Square Garden fortified by resources and connections virtually dominating the fistic racket.

The "Western Clique" long has been powerful in wrestling, exploiting a succession of heavyweight stars from the days of Frank Gotch down through Stetcher, Caddock, Wayne Munn and Ed (Strangler) Lewis. The "Boston Clique" obtained ascendency when Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg threw Lewis for the championship, injecting the "flying tackle" hold and a new variety of collegiate color into the mat sport. Sonnenberg is the world's titleholder, in direct line of succession, but Dick Shikat is recognized as the champion by New York and Pennsylvania, thereby establishing another clique of interests.

The N. B. A. has succeeded, at least, in putting the spotlight on the shortcomings of wrestling. So complex, however, is the situation that there is little likelihood for the time being of any effective national regulation. The answer is that things are too profitable otherwise.

Scores Made At Weekly Shoot

In the shoot off by the six tie men, Caunitz, Chaffee, Doty, Rhymer and Davis, were again tie with 25 each and elected to shoot it off in the next event which was for the William Davis Hawk, Inc., prize. Again there were three ties.

| | | |

Chaffee thus winning the M. H. Herzog prize for the day and a point on the William Davis Hawk, Inc., prize. Fromer, Coles, Martin, Davis and Chaffee now each have one point on the Hawk prize.

Spotlight Centers On Caldwell As Lew Fonseca Bows To Illness

By JAY VESSELS
Sports Editor
(Associated Press Feature Service.)

Cleveland, (AP).—This major league baseball business is a fascinating thing.

You never know when an opening is going to be provided for some youngster to start on his way to stardom.

Last year the Yankees needed a new catcher; young Bill Dickey came up and established himself as one of the greatest young receivers in the game.

Cleveland needed outfield and pitching help. Earl Averill and Wes Farrell came to the rescue.

So it was throughout the majors with other first year men like Outfielder Roy Johnson of the Tigers, Johnny Frederick of the Dodgers, Evar Swanson of the Reds and Chuck Klein of the Phillies shooting up to the big show to strengthen fielding positions and to add batting punch.

Similar opportunities stand out now. And noteworthy among these is the one involving first base at Cleveland.

Here are the Indians with Lew Fonseca, regular first baseman, so weakened by a siege of sickness that his physicians say he may not be able to play baseball before midsummer.

This brings into the picture Bruce Caldwell, a rookie, who now can quit singing about waiting for his lucky break.

Caldwell, farmed out by Cleveland, played great ball for the New Haven club of the Eastern League last year, finishing with a batting average of .359, but until a few weeks ago he apparently stood little chance of getting a crack at the regular first base job for the Indians.

Fonseca had inspired the whole Cleveland club with his smart fielding and his batting which placed him at the top of the league for the season.

Lew will be out at least temporarily. So it will be up to Caldwell. It's one of those opportunities of a lifetime. Those who saw Bruce do it for Old Eli are pulling for him in this new test.

Bruce Caldwell will be given a thorough trial by the Cleveland Indians since Lew Fonseca apparentl ywill be indisposed the early part of the season.

Spinny's and "Y" Clash Tonight

The Spinny Radio Five of Port Ewen and the Y. M. C. A. quintet, who are now engaged in one of the most outstanding basketball series of the season, with Spinny's showing the way owing to its victory at Port Ewen last week, will resume hostilities tonight at the "Y".

The games is scheduled to start at 8:30 and from then until the final whistle sounds everything promises to be action. Both teams are out strong to win, the Radio men being anxious to uphold the good start they got in the first game, and the "Y" team eager to even matters with their opponents.

One of the largest basketball crowds that ever visited the "Y" is expected to turn out for the game, the rooters being about even, assuring plenty of cheering for each team.

Previous to the feature there will be a game between the Port Ewen Men's Club and the second team of the Y. M. C. A. The preliminary will get under way at 7:30.

Percolator For High Score.

In the show window of Safford & Scudder, Wall street jewelers, is shown a handsome electric percolator which was donated by W. Davis Hawk as a prize to be awarded by the Ulster County Gun Club for high score in the club shoots.

Basketball Uniforms.

The uniform department of D. Kantrowitz has outfitted the St. Paul young men's basketball team with new Kantrowitz uniforms. The color combination is very striking. The jerseys are solid gold trimmed with a black V neck. Across the chest of the jerseys is written St. Paul. The pants are black with gold side stripes.

Zither of Grecian Origin

The zither is chiefly of German origin, the name being derived from that of the cithara, a musical instrument of ancient Greeks. It is said to be still popular among the peasants of the Tyrol and southern Germany and in the latter part of the last century was popular here and in Great Britain.

Suggest Landis As Mediator

Ruler of Big League Baseball Named To Settle Dissension in Brooklyn Club.

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—National League club owners had a few chores to perform today before allowing the players to take over the baseball reins for 1930.

The league's spring meeting generally is devoted to adoption of the schedule for the coming season and advance indications were that there was little else to be done at the current get-together.

There was a possibility, however, that efforts would be made to settle once and for all the internal dissension that has torn the Brooklyn club for several years. Suggestions were made that K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, might act as mediator in the long battle between Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the club, and S. W. McKeever, a heavy stockholder. Robinson's contract as manager has expired and, strictly speaking, the Dodgers are without any pilot to guide them from the bench. Robinson has the support of the Ebbets heirs and so far has managed to defeat all of McKeever's efforts to oust him.

The International League, meeting yesterday, named a committee to meet with similar bodies from the American Association and Pacific Coast League in Chicago on June 16 to discuss matters of interest to these AA circuits. The Chicago meeting, invitations to which will be dispatched to the American Association and Pacific Coast organization, was suggested in view of the fact that the major-minor agreement expires September 6, 1931. The International League will be represented by Walter Hapgood, Toronto; Warren Giles, Rochester, and George Weise, Baltimore.

The International League also voted to change distribution of receipts, providing that the visiting team be paid 15 cents per admission instead of 12½ cents as in the past. The meeting was to be continued today to dispose of the schedule and any other unfinished business.

The Eastern League met to adopt the schedule but found itself unable to agree on some of the dates awarded. The schedule committee will meet in Springfield, Mass., on Thursday in an effort to iron out the difficulties.

Commissioner Landis reserved decision in a dispute between the New York Giants and Jersey City Internationals over the services of Joe Visotski, a pitcher. The Giants bought Visotski's contract from Wilkes-Barre while Jersey City was buying him from Davenport. The commissioner will have to decide whether Davenport or Wilkes-Barre had a right to dispose of the pitcher.

Babe Ruth's threat to quit baseball unless he is given a three-year contract at $85,000 annually gave baseball men something to talk about, but there was no disposition on the part of anyone to take the slugger's statement too seriously. Most observers felt that by the time the season opens, or before, Ruth will have adjusted his differences with the New York Yankees probably on a contract that will be a compromise between his demands and the club's offer of $75,000 per year for two years.

"PAPA BARKED AT ME!" SCREAMED LITTLE GLADYS

"See, Esmond, your hacking cough has frightened our little pledge of love. I warned you to keep to OLD GOLDS, the honey-smooth, queen-leaf cigarette."

"And right you are as always, my sweet. Come, Gladys, you shall have an ice cream soda water whilst I purchase a whole carton of OLD GOLDS from the tobacconist. Smoother and better, the treasure of them all, Papa shall never frighten you again... there's not a cough in a carload."

Large Crowd at Rapid Minstrels

A large audience witnessed the second annual minstrel show of Rapid Hose Company, Monday night in Kingston High School auditorium, where the show will be staged again tonight, starting at 8:15 o'clock. According to ticket sales another large gathering will greet the firemen performers.

The grand original first part, with its novel opening arranged by Edward V. Barton, director, went big with the audience who enjoyed the catchy musical numbers, accompaniment for which was furnished by William Smith's orchestra, formerly of the Palace Theatre, Newburgh.

Soloists, who pleased the listeners with songs of yesteryear and present day favorites were: Mickey Corcoran, singing "Little Pal;" Martin Kelley, "If You Were the Only Girl In the World;" A. Robert Smith, "When You Come to the End of the Day;" Harry Zellmer, "The Desert Song;" Fred Albrecht, "I Miss You;" Henry Peskie, "My Wild Irish Rose;" Thomas Noble, "I'll Close My Eyes to the Rest of the World;" John Long, "You Were Meant for Me."

End men and the songs they put across were Johnny Fisher, "Sunny Side Up;" Frank Strobie, "If I Had a Talking Picture of You;" George Reis, "Hello Baby;" Ray Schatzel, "Taint No Sin;" Carl Spiegel, "Piccolo Pete;" Tommy Dolan, "Singing in the Bathtub." Johnnie Doolin and Eddie Barton did the premier ends and sang the respective numbers, "How Could Red Riding Hood" and "Some of These Days." John Mayers assisted Mr. Barton in a closing number for the first part.

The second half consisted of a specialty singing and whistling number by the Misses Marie Duffy and Jennie Entratt; a saxophone offering by Richard Kalish and Howard Thomas; a sister team song act featuring the Misses Lillian and Evelyn Curran and a skit, "The Darktown Fire Brigade," in which the end men, assisted by Ken Geary, Joe Corkery and John Mayers, furnished comedy.

Scenery and lighting effects were taken care of by Montgomery Bailey and Lou Short, assisted by members of Rapid Hose Company.

Among those who attended the minstrel were Mayor Edgar J. Dempsey and the Board of fire commissioners.

Rip Van Winkle Hotel at Pine Hill Destroyed

Fire completely destroyed the Rip Van Winkle Hotel at Pine Hill Saturday morning. The blaze is said to have resulted from stoves left burning by workmen who were rebuilding this famous and one of the oldest of the Catskill mountain houses. The fire was discovered about 6 o'clock in the morning, by persons living on the other side of the mountain who saw smoke and believing it to be coming from the mountain house, reported it to authorities. When fire fighting equipment arrived at the scene, the house had burned beyond hope of saving it. The proprietor, Louis Cohn, had just spent some $10,000 in rebuilding the place.

Blame for the fire is laid to stoves left burning Friday evening by workmen who were completing the remodeling. There was no caretaker staying at the house during the winter season, and the fire had gained considerable headway before it had been discovered. The Rip Van Winkle Hotel accomodated about 200 persons, and was the second summer house to be built in that section of the Catskills. It was constructed about 45 years ago by Daniel T. Winter. A cottage on the property was saved from the blaze.

Hughes Named Chief Justice

to resign as solicitor general when his father becomes the chief justice. His duties carry him frequently before the Supreme Court and he feels it would be an impropriety to plead government cases before a tribunal of which his father is the presiding officer.

Displays Evident Pleasure.

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—Charles Evans Hughes, nominated by President Hoover as Chief Justice of the United States, will accept the appointment as offering the greatest opportunity for service that could be offered by the government.

His face wreathed in a smile, he displayed evident pleasure over the appointment when he greeted newspaper men at his law office in lower Broadway.

He said he would issue a formal statement as soon as he received formal notice of his appointment, but that he would resign at once as a Justice of the World Court.

He explained that his election as a Justice of the World Court had merely been to fulfill the unexpired term of John Bassett Moore and his term would have ended in September.

The new regulations require that World Court Justices hold no public office in their own countries and that they devote the greater part of their energies to World Court work. He said he had already informed the court he would not be a candidate for reelection as he was reluctant to spend the necessary time away from the United States.

Shortly before announcement of his nomination, Mr. Hughes had issued the following statement in praise of retiring Chief Justice Taft:

"I regret most deeply that Chief Justice Taft is unable to continue in office. His work as Chief Justice has ably crowned a great career and will have an abiding influence. It was both the fine quality of that work, and the spirit in which it was performed evincing not only the most conscientious industry and judicial independence, but an intense loyalty to the institution, that have given great satisfaction to the country. Freed from the exactions of the office, it is hoped that he will find his days lengthened and that his heart will be cheered by the tributes of esteem and warm affection which he will receive in abundant measure from his grateful fellow countrymen."

LARGE ATTENDANCE OF PAINTERS AT DEMONSTRATION

The demonstration of the Dupont de Nemours Company's Black Label line of paints for master painters given to the master painters of Ulster county by the Kingston Dry Dock & Construction Company, Inc., at the Governor Clinton Hotel Monday evening was a decided success. There was a much larger attendance than was anticipated and the demonstration proved to be entertaining and exceptionally instructive.

Practically all of the master painters of Kingston were there as well as a large number throughout the county. A number of valuable prizes were given. An excellent buffet supper was served at the conclusion of the demonstration, which rounded out an evening which was voted by all to be something out of the ordinary.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Dr. Mary Cushman is on the way back to a jungle to administer to the sick where roaring lions can be heard. She is a medical missionary for the Congregational and Christian Churches at Ochilesso, Portuguese West Central Africa, and has a hospital of 30 grass huts. In the last three months before her leave of absence she treated 4,000 patients.

Lima, Peru—Miss Annie Peck, who used to climb mountains, now flies over them. She has just visited Peruvian wilds by air as part of a sightseeing flight of South America.

Turin, Italy—The royal bridegroom is back at work. Reassuming command of his regiment and directing it at maneuvers, Crown Prince Humbert was watched by his admiring bride.

New York—George Bernard Shaw's anger is histrionic. Says a letter: "I always get into a rage very carefully and conscientiously because it saves a lot of time and makes people realize my opinion vividly and promptly. My indignation, as you probably guess, is purely histrionic—mere mountebanking." The letter is one of a number involved in litigation which the Magazine Plain Talk contemplates against Shaw. The presses were stopped when Shaw forbade publication. Then the Magazine decided it was within its rights in printing the correspondence.

Washington—In his 86th year Theodore F. Shuey can make pothooks fast enough to record the fastest Senator verbatim. He has taken Senate oratory stenographically for 61 years without missing a day and on his 35th birthday Senators expressed their admiration in speeches.

New York—Uncle Sam is having a big tea party. Seven experts are meeting daily in the appraisers' offices tasting and smelling different brands of tea to see if they come up to standard. It's an annual affair. They have a hundred or so sips daily.

New Haven—One of the big attractions for the girls at Yale's Junior prom was Major Coolidge of the governor's foot guards. Just curiosity, naturally. Mrs. Coolidge was with him.

London—"When you get your party on the telephone here "you are through". That's what the operator says to indicate the connection is made. American girls with the naval delegation have become accustomed to it; they no longer think it means the conversation has ended.

Madrid—The new government proposes to stir up interest in the classics. The ministry of education, headed by the Duke of Alba, is to publish Greek and Latin editions and sell them at cost.

ACTIVITIES OF THE CHURCH OF THE COMFORTER

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held in the church hall on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. It is hoped that all the members may be present. On Friday evening at 6:30, the annual banquet of the Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the church hall. It is expected that upwards of two hundred will be present. The Ladies' Aid Society will serve the following menu: Fruit cocktail, hot roast beef with brown gravy, mashed potatoes, peas, spring salad, cranberry jelly, celery, olives, rolls, rye bread, coffee, ice cream and homemade cake. After the banquet General Secretary Willard E. Rice will speak. On Saturday afternoon, February 8, the W. W. Class of the Bible school will hold a food sale at Herman LaTour's furniture store on Broadway, corner of Brewster street. Anyone in the church who would like to bake something for the sale can telephone either the teacher, Mrs. Edward Rowe, No. 2629, or Miss Harriet Dietz, the president No. 287-J. The public is invited to patronize the sale.

AT THE THEATRES

Today.

Kingston: "The Mighty," George Bancroft in another crook story. Bancroft plays a crook forced to go to war who on his return decides to go straight through the inspiration of a girl. As always Bancroft scores a hit. You ought to see it.

Broadway: "Half Way to Heaven," convincing story of an aerial act in which Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Jean Arthur and Paul Lucas form the triangle. This is the best picture that Rogers has had in a long time, and his trials and tribulations will make many a young girl's heart flutter. See it by all means.

Orpheum: "Dynamite," a typical DeMille melodrama well acted and photographed with an excellent cast. Conrad Nagel, Kay Johnson, Charles Bickford and Julia Faye make up the action which is of the kind to keep you on the edge of your seats.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: Same.
Broadway: Same.
Orpheum: Same.

Tracy Van Vliet is the local leader of the poultry club. They elected Harold Fisher as president. The next meeting of the poultry club will be held Fhriday, February 7, at 3 p. m.

Barnard Joy, county club agent, helped in the organization of these clubs and will supervise the work during the year.
